

Tàta Storytime

Kids stories written by us,
read by us, for ALL

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
London United Kingdom April 2020

Introducing Tàta Storytime, a fun NEW children's YouTube show, created by Okezie Morro. With a vision to shine a much needed spotlight on stories that celebrate the African and Caribbean heritage, this online show which launched on April 7th 2020, has received a phenomenal response.

What makes it even more exciting is, the star studded line up of award winning black actors who share the same passion as fellow actor and creator Okezie Morro. The passion to use their experiences, faces and voices to inspire the younger generation with stories that broaden a child's understanding of cultural diversity.

Tàta Storytime which is filmed in London, is created for both children and adult's alike and invites all who want to take a journey of discovery through stories that shape different cultures.

Tàta Storytime - Creator & Producer
(The Mist, Netflix)

"This show was inspired by my Daughter. I wanted the opportunity to sit down beside her as a parent and watch shows where she felt represented in not only the stories but also the storytellers."

Charles Venn

(Casualty, BBC)

"Story telling is an ancient practice that has fuelled the imagination of children since the beginning of time, me being one of them. Now that I am an adult and parent I feel it is my duty to help fuel the imagination of children. Tàta Storytime has enabled me to do that!!"

Adjoa Andoh

(Invictus, Bridgerton Netflix)

"Thrilled to join creator Okezie Morro on Tàta Storytime. Children of all ages love stories and we are hungry to see ourselves in those stories. I rarely saw myself as a child in the books I read but for my children and all the generations of children coming, it's vital for them to see we are all of value, all in the story."

Lucian Msamati

(Game of Thrones HBO)

"... Beautiful tales well told and delightfully illustrated; what's not to love? It's a privilege to be a part of something so universal and at the same time refreshingly unique..."
